

The Mapper interface converts Payload objects into high level data structures and vice versa

The Payload object is a container for raw bytes sent or received through the Channel interface